brief dictionary of the basque language

USE EUROPE'S OLDEST LANGUAGE TO ORDER A PINTXO. Basque is the oldest living language in Europe and one of the few non-Indo-European languages that has not only survived but is actually thriving in San Sebastian today. Half of the people in San Sebastian speak Basque. Join in and learn some expressions. Learn to say hello and order a pintxo in our language: "Egunon. Pintxo bat, mesedez" (Good morning. A pintxo please).

The sea brought the first fishermen to San Sebastian, who were seeking refuge on Mount Urgull. It later attracted the interest of King Sancho of Navarre, who was its founder, and of all of the armies who have passed through here in the history of war. The sea also brought with it a queen with skin problems and the subsequent fashion of summering. And the sea also brought our current cultural, economic and tourist potential.

a little history

everything brought by the sea

King Sancho the Wise of Navarre's desire to have a route out to sea from his kingdom led to him granting San Sebastian a charter in 1180, and this event can be considered the moment when the town was officially founded. This then saw maritime trade being combined with traditional whaling and cod fishing.

Its proximity to France and its position on the Road to Santiago not only drove the development of this small coastal town, they also made it a strategic location during times of war. It therefore became a fortified town in the 12th century. Over the centuries it was subjected to Youth at La Concha Beach in 1916. At the beginning of the 20th century, the city attracted European high society, thus boosting an emerging tourism industry that transformed San Sebastian and consolidated its seaside image.

numerous sieges, but the people of San Sebastian managed to defend it from their enemies until 1719, when the town surrendered for the first time and fell into the hands of France for two years. In 1794 the town succumbed again when besieged by the French, this time until 1813, when chronology of major events

San Sebastian in the first half of the 19th century

San Sebastian was liberated by Anglo-Portuguese soldiers, who burnt down and looted the town. Only a few houses were left standing, forcing the people of San Sebastian to rebuild it, almost from scratch, creating the Old Town that we know today.

Happier times were to follow when Queen Isabella II, whose doctors had recommended that she bathed in the sea to alleviate her skin problems, made summering in San Sebastian fashionable. This was in 1845 and, from then on, her presence attracted the court and numerous aristocrats during the summer months. The town was becoming famous and needed to grow and expand. The walls were demolished in 1864, and the urban development that took place gave rise to the Cortázar expansion district, which is the current city centre.

At the start of the 20th century, San Sebastian experienced its "Belle Époque", becoming the preferred tourist destination of the European upper classes. Queen María Cristina made the Miramar Palace the summer residence of her court, and the luxury hotels, casinos and theatres flourished.

During the 1st World War, moneyed Europeans took refuge from the conflict here. Much of the French influence that is visible on the streets of the city is due to these visitors.

The heavy industrialisation in the years following the Civil War in 1936 resulted in a dark period during which certain poorly-judged urban development took place.

But in the second half of the 20th century, San Sebastian consolidated its economic, cultural and tourist potential, pushing forward new projects while at the same time preserving its natural and historical heritage, becoming, in the process, the stylish combination of tradition and modernity that we know today.

King Sancho of Navarra granted a Charter to San Sebastian, considered the moment when the town was founded.

1450

The first trading port was constructed.

1597

The plague devastated the town. The infected were treated on Santa Clara Island.

1662

Felipe IV granted it City status.

1719-1721

San Sebastian surrendered for the first time to the French army.

1813

The Anglo-Portuguese troops "liberated" the city, burning it down and almost completely destroying it.

1845

Isabel II made La Concha Beach fashionable.

1863

The city walls were demolished.

1888

The first stone of Buen Pastor church was laid and it was finished in 1897. In 1953 it was classed as a cathedral.

1893

Queen María Cristina established the Miramar Palace the summer residence of her court.

1912

The Igeldo funicular, the Victoria Eugenia Theatre and María Cristina Hotel were opened.

1953

First edition of the San Sebastian International Film Festival.

2016

It was named European Capital of Culture.

The Old Town

The Old Town preserves the essence of San Sebastian. It emerged as a fishing neighbourhood, sheltered by Mount Urgull, when the city was still connected to the mainland by a narrow strip of land. Today it is the heart of the city, its bustling hub. Its lively streets are home to the oldest buildings and countless bars and restaurants, gastronomic societies, shops, etc.

tradition and gastronomy

The tour starts at La Bretxa Market (1) which takes its name (meaning ‘breach’) from the place where the English and Portuguese troops broke through the city wall in the siege of 1813, when the French army was stationed in the city. Its traditional street market is home to stalls with some of the most highly-rated products in San Sebastian and some of the most famous chefs visit it almost every day.

Although there are “pintxo” bars and restaurants tucked away in practically every street in the Old Town, Fermin Calbeton (2) undoubtedly takes first prize, because of the number and variety of establishments there. A few metres from that street is Constitución Square (3) the heart of the Old Town. It is an arcaded square, overlooked by the city’s old town hall, whose balconies still retain the numbering of the old stands from the bullring that it once was.

A bustling atmosphere, with people and tapas is also found on Kale Nagusia (4). At the end of this street, overlooked by Mount Urgull, is the Basilica of Santa María (5), a baroque church erected in the 18th century. The building impresses with its size and for being the home of a fascinating Diocesan museum with works by El Greco, Jorge Oteiza and Chillida.

The only street that escaped destruction.

If we turn right we enter Abuztuaren 31 street (6), a road which, besides its gastronomic fame, has great significance for the people of San Sebastian: Their homes were the only ones to survive the devastating fire caused during the siege of 1813. Halfway down the street there is an open space that is used as a pelota court, playground and a stage for rural sports competitions and concerts: Trinidad Square (7). ‘La Trini’ is the most popular spot during the Jazaldia jazz festival, an outdoor auditorium with perfect acoustics, which has seen some of the 20th century’s biggest names in blues, soul and jazz, e.g. B.B. King, James Brown and Ella Fitzgerald.

At the other end of Abuztuaren 31 Street stands San Vicente Church (8), the city’s oldest building. It was built at the beginning of the 16th century, in the late Gothic style.

On the other side of the bustling Zuloaga Square that opens out to the north of the church is the San Telmo Museum (9), of Basque Society and Citizenship. An exhibition space devoted to Basque history, which is housed in a former Dominican convent that was erected in the 16th century and extended in 2011 with a modern building.

The mountain of San Sebastián, 120 metres high.

Monte Urgull (10) rises up opposite the square. It was owned for centuries by the army which fortified its slopes and summit to defend the city. Some of those walls still remain today, as a reminder of the city's military and defensive past. There are numerous tracks and roads: one route to explore starts at the stairway that is besides San Telmo Museum. From here you go up to the romantic English Cemetery. Soon after you will reach the summit, where you will find the Mota Castle and the Sagrado Corazón (Sacred Heart) monument; here you can explore the History House (a museum where the city's 800-years history is recounted), admire the views from the only place in the city where you can see all three beaches, and go down to the port along the Apaizen pasealekua (Priest's Promenade).

The Old Town does not have a beach but it does have a route out to sea: the Port (11) which you get to from the Old Town via one of the gates of the ancient city wall. San Sebastián's dock has a life of its own, with its traditional seafood restaurants and the traditional houses of the families of former fishermen.

At the end is the Aquarium (13), as well as the Basque Maritime Museum (12) which is home to the seafaring heritage of San Sebastián.

Corsair San Sebastian.

Between the 17th and 18th centuries, the port of Donostia was the largest corsair port on the Iberian mainland and one of the most important in Europe. And the Old Town was the heart of the city.

The privateers from Donostia attacked ships from Finisterre in Galicia to Brittany in France, particularly targeting French craft.

In the summer season, motorboats leave the port for Santa Clara Island (14), a favourite haven of the people of San Sebastián. This islet is away from the hustle and bustle of the city: there are no vehicles and there is only a tiny beach (one of the few on the Cantabrian Sea to face the south), footpaths, stairways, picnic benches, quiet spots and excellent views of the sea and the San Sebastián skyline. The spectacular "Hondalea" sculpture by Cristina Iglesias has been on display inside the lighthouse since 2021. And a tip if you want to swim there: the shortest route is from Ondarreta Beach: 400 m. At the end of the port, the Paseo Nuevo walkday (15), starts, the wildest and most beautiful in the city. Along its entire length it skirts around Mount Urgull, and it is where you can watch the spectacle of giant waves on stormy days. There, you will find the Construcción Vacía (16). (Empty Construction), the large sculpture by Jorge Oteiza, defiantly facing the sea.

At sunset, the beautiful, Rationalist-style building of the Real Club Náutico (17). (Royal Yacht Club - 1929) draws out the last rays of sunlight of the day. The platform that starts next to it and enters the sea is a favourite spot among locals to see out the day.

2 centre and romantic area

San Sebastian's romantic area emerged in the mid-19th century, along the urban development that was planned after the demolition of the wall that had protected the town. This is where the charm of the Belle Époque is revealed in casinos, theatres and hotels, where the main shopping streets are concentrated and the city's unmistakable Parisian feel is most evident.

architecture, Belle Époque and shopping

The old walls that used to protect the Old Town extended as far as the Boulevard (1) area, which now serves as a borderline with the romantic area of San Sebastian, constructed in the mid-19th century. The old city walls of Donostia/San Sebastian were demolished in 1863, although you can still see remains on the ground floor of the Bretxa market. The Boulevard is the most bustling pedestrian thoroughfare in the entire city; a pleasant, tree-lined avenue with shops, ice cream parlours etc. In the area closest to the town hall there is a bandstand with delightful modernist touches. Next to this is the “reloj del Bule” (Boulevard clock) underneath which couples and “cuadrillas” (groups of friends) have been arranging to meet for generations. Further along is the City Hall (2) building, formerly the city’s casino, which was built in 1887 in the style of the gambling houses that were dotted along the French and Italian Riviera.

Opposite the town hall are the Alderdi Eder Gardens (3), a green space designed at the end of the 19th century. Highlights include their carousel, which continues to fascinate the little ones, and the presence of tamarisk trees (popularly known as tamarinds) — a tree very characteristic of the maritime areas of San Sebastian.

Emblems of San Sebastian from the Belle Époque.

In the area closest to the river, two icons of the Belle Époque, both inaugurated in 1912 stand out: the Victoria Eugenia Theatre and Hotel María Cristina (5), an inseparable duo, both initiatives of a city with the (successful) ambition of attracting European tourists during the interwar period.

The Parisian inspiration that defines the city.

A few blocks away is the first city park to be built in San Sebastian, Gipuzkoa Square (4), a beautiful, French-style garden from the 19th century. The square is overlooked by the Provincial Council building. This part of the city is a neatly arranged grid of houses in the European new urbanist style, but with touches of San Sebastian: the characteristic yellowish stone with which these buildings were constructed came from the sandstone quarries that operated on mounts Igeldo and Ulia.

Alongside them flows the Urumea River, the city’s natural axis, crossed by several bridges that form part of its identity: at its mouth, stands the Zurriola Bridge, the bridge that is most exposed to the fury of the sea, recognisable by its large art deco-style lampposts. The second bridge, with a more conventional style, Santa Catalina, is the oldest in the city. The third, half a kilometre upriver, is the María Cristina Bridge (6), the most famous thanks to its fancy streetlights, inspired by the Alexander III Bridge in Paris.

A pedestrian-friendly centre for strolling and enjoying local shops and the atmosphere.

This bridge connects directly to Bilbao Square (7), which has a circular design and a beautiful fountain at its centre and was built at the start of the 20th century. The square is a gateway to the romantic area and to the main shopping streets, such as Hondarribia and Loiola. The latter of these, which is fully pedestrianised, is where you will find the Buen Pastor Cathedral (8), a neo-gothic building that was inaugurated in 1897, a tribute to the large European medieval cathedrals. Its 75-metre steeple is still the highest building in San Sebastian.

The romantic area is also known for its pleasant streets and pedestrianised squares, with shopping areas and coffee terraces. Next to the bustling Reyes Católicos Street, with views of the back of the cathedral, stands the stately building of the Koldo Mitxelena Cultural Centre (9).

On the way to La Concha Beach, we will come across another of the food markets that dates back over one hundred years, San Martín (10), now rehoused in a modern building.

La Concha Beach forms part of the city centre's urban landscape. The beautiful promenade that runs along is one of the favourite places for the people of San Sebastian to relax and enjoy their free time.

Behind the historic Hotel de Londres, the streets open up to the city's greatest emblem: La Concha Beach (11) and its iconic railings, designed by the then municipal architect, Juan Rafael Alday, in 1916. From these railings we gaze upon the beach of all beaches. In 1845, Queen Isabel II came to La Concha after her doctors recommended that she bathe in the sea to alleviate her skin problems. After that, with the new fashion of going to the beach, high society aristocrats followed behind her, leading to San Sebastian becoming stylish and chic. And then came the rest: the nickname of the Pearl of the Cantabrian Sea, the tourists and the acclaim for being one of the most beautiful city beaches in the world.

There is a route with a distance of nearly two kilometres between the City Hall and the Antiguo tunnel. Soon we reach the famous 'clocks' and then the renovated building of La Perla Talaso-Sport Centre (12), opened in 1912 and still retaining the attractive style of the Belle Époque.

There are no buildings along the final stretch of La Concha's promenade. Very near to the Miramar palace and the Antiguo district, on a balcony with splendid views of the bay and Santa Clara Island, is the sculpture 'Homenaje a Fleming' (13) (Homage to Fleming) by the local artist Eduardo Chillida.

Gros and Egia

Gros starts on the other side of the River Urumea and, together with the neighbouring Egia district, is one of the liveliest areas of the city. A forward-looking area that overlooks the Cantabrian Sea through Zurriola Beach, where we will find surfers on the street, board in hand, bars with live music, a mountain and a park with numerous footpaths, innovative architecture and, a few streets away, a modern cultural centre.

young, vibrant and bohemian

For decades, the Gros district was known for its workshops, factories, a bullring (El Chofre, demolished in 1973) and the fierce waves on its coastline. However, Gros is now one of the youngest, most dynamic and most invigorating areas in the city, with modern shops and bustling streets to go out for “pintxos” and a few drinks (locally known as ‘poteo’). With the improvement and expansion of the beach twenty years ago, and the subsequent construction of the Kursaal Congress Centre and Auditorium, the area started to undergo a metamorphosis that has made it what it is today.

Surfer spirit and urban culture.

The city’s first major contemporary building was also built in Gros: Kursaal Convention Centre (1), the work of Rafael Moneo, consists of two large buildings that mimic two stranded rocks facing the sea. These ‘cubes’ are the main headquarters of the Zinemaldia, the San Sebastian International Film Festival and an exciting programme of events is held here (concerts, classical music, exhibitions, etc.) which are worth checking out.

One of the drivers of this change is Zurriola Beach (2) and the promenade that runs alongside it. Unlike the quiet and elegant character of the other beaches in San Sebastian, Zurriola reflects the more versatile and bohemian nature of the district and is favoured among young people.

It is known for its surfing atmosphere. It is also perfect for surfing beginners, thanks to the numerous schools offering their services. In July, Zurriola hosts one of the most popular stages of the Jazz Festival. And it also has a specific area for nudists.

At the end of the promenade, under Mount Ulia, is Sagüés (3), one of the best spots in the city for watching the sun set over the sea. For decades, its famous, popular ‘wall’ has been a meeting place for surfers, groups of friends and couples. The large white sculpture near to the end of the promenade is La Paloma de la Paz (4) (the Dove of Peace) by Nestor Basterretxea, a work that symbolises the power of words and dialogue over violence.

Zurriola beach is a prelude to everything that’s going on behind it, in the Gros and Egia
districts.

This work concludes the Basque sculptural route, which also includes Chillida's Peine del Viento (Wind Comb, in Antiguo) and Oteiza's Construcción Vacía (Empty Construction, on the Paseo Nuevo).

The mountain that looms over the city from the east is Ulía (5). At its summit there were once lookout points where people scanned the sea in search of whales. At the start of the 20th century, one of Donostia/San Sebastian's first amusement parks was built there. Ulía is now one of the green lungs of Donostia/San Sebastian. With just a 20-minute climb we can reach its forests and cliffs, and admire a spectacular panoramic view of the city. It is through Mount Ulía where pilgrims come walking towards Santiago. One of the most popular paths leads from the Faro de la Plata lighthouse, in the neighbouring town of Pasaia, through the coastline.

Gros also has numerous establishments where they offer the best pintxos (tapas) in Donostia/San Sebastian. The pedestrianised Peña y Goñi and Zabaleta streets are where many of these trendy 'pintxeros' (tapas bars) are found.

The development of the Gros that we now know started in the 1920s. Many of the buildings in the district reflect the architectural vanguards of the period, notably Rationalism. Another, more interesting example of the expressionist branch of this new trend is the Equitativa (7) building. Its curved façade welcomes everyone who enters Gros over the Santa Catalina Bridge. And in 2026 the GOe building (6) was inaugurated, a cutting-edge centre located very close to Sagües and dedicated to culinary training and innovation.

Egia, the creative, vibrant, and green neighbourhood.

To the south of Gros is Egia. This neighborhood is the latest area to join the places you must visit in the city, largely thanks to the Tabakalera (8), the International Contemporary Culture Centre. Opened in 2015, it is the city's old tobacco factory that was converted into a multipurpose venue. Plus, a panoramic terrace with excellent views over the River Urueta and the Romantic area of the city.

Egia has also become the new focus of the city's musical and cultural offerings. In addition to the concerts scheduled in the Tabakalera, there are bars in the area with live music and shows.

Cristina Enea Park (9) is Egia's 'green' resident. It is the largest and most wooded urban park in the city. The park still retains the charm of yesteryear, with a full network of footpaths.

Antiguo and Igeldo

Antiguo is where the city originally emerged, almost ten centuries ago, although it is slightly outside the centre of it. It has its own beach, a mountain with a retro amusement park, an English-style royal mansion and a bustling network of shops, hotels and dining establishments.

It's time to go through the tunnel that leads to Antiguo...

Where the city ends, where the waves break, the Peine del Viento (Wind Comb) is so adapted to its environment that it looks like an original part of the landscape (10).

palaces and traditional shops facing the sea

Antiguo is one of the city's most special neighbourhoods. It was here where the first population centre was established, around a monastery devoted to the French saint, Sebastian. The religious complex, of which nothing remains now, was where the Miramar Palace now stands. For centuries, Antiguo was a farming area located outside the city walls, almost two kilometres from the Old Town, so it developed its own character with its own customs.

There are several ways of getting to Antiguo from the city centre: one is along La Concha's promenade, going through the Tunnel (1) that is decorated with maritime motifs and one of the legacies of being the European Capital of Culture in 2016. Another is along Miraconcha Promenade, which ends at the very door of the Miramar Palace. And, of course, another route is along La Concha Beach itself; if the tide is low we will get to Ondarreta Beach by walking along the walkway from the Pico del Loro (2).

If the sea is on our right, to the left we will never lose sight of the stately, British-style Miramar Palace (3). This peculiar building from the end of the 19th century evokes the style of an English country mansion and from 1893 it was the summer residence of Queen located between the Wind Comb and the Miramar Palace, Ondarreta is perfect for a family beach day.

María Cristina, Alfonso XIII and Juan Carlos de Borbón. The best thing about this complex are its beautifully maintained gardens, with views of the bay, perfect for lying down, reading or chatting. And admission is free.

A district with a neighbourhood feel.

Leaving the park, we find the San Sebastian del Antiguo Church, which is located at the beginning of the main street of the district, Calle Matia (4). This street features friendly bars and a number of traditional shops. And of course, a very local atmosphere.

At the end of the street is the Jose María Sert Plaza (5), known for its palm trees and fountains. A relaxing oasis in the middle of this lively neighbourhood. Here, is the start of the residential district of Benta Berri, where the headquarters of the Musikene (6) stand, the Basque Country's Higher School of Music. The building, the latest addition to San Sebastian's contemporary architecture, stands out for its geometric volumes and golden panels.

Heading back towards the beach, we arrive at Avenida Tolosa (7), one of the most important access roads to the city. This is where the main university area of San Sebastian can be found, a place full of green spaces and young life.

Once past the university, we find the Ondarreta Villas (8), a quiet network of streets with hardly any traffic, where there are cosy residential and holiday villas from the 20th century. They come in all kinds of styles: Basque, Rationalist, adorned with Portuguese tiles or with a neoclassical look.

The peaceful beach of San Sebastian.

The villas are the perfect prelude before reaching the gardens (where there is a statue in honour of Queen María Cristina) and Ondarreta Beach (9).

This is the preferred beach for families and groups: it is large, relaxed, with calm waters, with only a few, very small waves. In the summer it has beach bars and playgrounds. Ondarreta is also the point of departure for swimming the half-kilometre crossing to Santa Clara Island.

The mountain that seems to be swooping down on the 'Peine' and the sea is Igeldo (11), the highest of all of the hills around the bay. At the start of the 20th century an Amusement from Igeldo you get the most famous panoramic view of the city, with the bay and the island in the foreground.

Park (13) was built at its summit, and this still retains much of its original character today. This is partly thanks to the wooden Funicular (12) that takes you to the top, overcoming an impossible slope, the old tower that used to serve as a lighthouse and lookout point for whales and some vintage-style rides, like the Río Misterioso (Mysterious River) and Montaña Suiza (Rollercoaster).

Ondarreta beach stretches as far as the Wind Comb sculpture (10), the city's main sculptural landmark. This space is the joint work of the local sculptor Eduardo Chillida –the steel 'combs' that look like they are swimming away from the rocks are by him– and the architect Luis Peña Ganchegui, who was responsible for the development of the area. This place has taken on an almost magical significance for the people of San Sebastian. The Wind Comb is one of the best places to take part in a traditional pastime among the locals: watching the waves on days with rough seas.

Amara and Riberas

These neighbourhoods reflect the daily life of San Sebastian. During the day, they are filled with activity from shops and offices, while at sunset their bars and terraces come alive with the traditional "poteo" (bar hopping while enjoying small drinks known as potes).

sporty neighbourhoods on the Urumea river

A hundred years ago, when San Sebastian was already a top European summer destination, the Amara Berri district (Berri = new) did not even exist. Its land belonged to the marshes of the River Urumea, which had barely been channelled. There was Amara Zaharra (Zaharra = Old), which still exists now, a popular neighbourhood that emerged around Easo Square (1), a perfect starting point for exploring the surroundings of the romantic area, where the area's liveliest pintxo bars are found.

Araba Park (2) is a leafy area where, in one of its corners, Queen María Cristina is remembered. Amara is arranged around two large avenues such as Sancho el Sabio (3) and Madrid (4); and streets such as Isabel II (5) and Balleneros (6), which have a wide culinary selection.

In the Riberas (9) district, which is also next to the

The sporting heart of the city.

The Anoeta Stadium (7) stands at the southern end of Amara and it is the stadium where Real Sociedad, the local First Division football team, plays its matches.

There is a large concentration of sporting facilities around Anoeta, e.g. swimming pools, sports centres, a pelota court, a skate park, a cycle track, the Illunbe bullring and a multipurpose facility where the Gipuzkoa basketball team also plays its First Division games. Do you want to experience Basque pelota firsthand? Check out the schedule for the Atano III frontón (pelota court).

river, stands the modern Iesu Church (8) and the Memorial Garden, which remembers all of the victims of violence, wars and terrorism. The church is the work of Rafael Moneo and its visual simplicity and minimalism are striking.

It is best to return to the city centre along the Avenue alongside the Urumea (10), first along Bizkaia promenade, and then along Gernikako Arbola promenade, where you can appreciate the buildings on Prim Street, which overlooks the River Urumea. This route has a pronounced Parisian feel, with no shortage of modernist tiles and landscaped courtyards. It is also the perfect route if you like to go running.

Look at the different architectural styles of the six bridges until you reach the sea. A real journey through time!

Aiete and Miramón

The districts of Aiete and Miramon are located at the top of the city, formerly dotted with homesteads and cider houses and now residential districts. As well as forests and gardens, they hold several surprises, like a summer palace from the 19th century with a history of colourful guests, some neo-gothic fortified towers, a Roman-style amphitheatre and the Science Museum.

a green lung among science and innovation

San Sebastian is a city that is surrounded by hills and the Aiete district is located on one of them: a quiet residential area, the highest part of which is dominated by the Aiete Palace and Park (1). Everything revolves around this neoclassical building whose construction was commissioned in 1878 by the Duke and Duchess of Bailén. It was the summer residence of the Spanish monarchs, from Isabel II to Alfonso XIII, and also the summer residence of the dictator Franco from 1941 to 1975.

The building is surrounded by a large, French-style monumental garden with a pond, swans and ducks, a cave and a waterfall made from artificial rock and, on the north side, a rainforest with numerous ancient trees and even giant sequoia trees.

A large natural space with many surprises.

If we follow the old road towards Hernani, we will come to another large San Sebastian park, Miramon. This is a wilder area that has been adapted for walkers.

The restored Katxola (2) farmhouse is on its grounds and here they produce cider using traditional methods from centuries gone by, with the ingredients being provided by the two ancient apple trees found in the park.

Other interesting sights include the Amphitheatre (3), a curious Roman-style stage area where they hold outdoor events; and the Arbide Towers (4), two neo-gothic buildings erected in the city centre in 1904 (next to the River Urumea) and transferred, stone by stone, to their current location in 1979, to prevent them from disappearing. Between them, countless footpaths trail off through the Miramon Forest (5), with numerous information panels on the fauna and flora found there, which even suggest circuits for doing Nordic walking.

Science and innovation in the heart of nature.

In the developed area near to the park, there is the Eureka Science Museum (6). It has over 170 interactive modules encouraging participation and experimentation and there is also a room with 20 species of live animals. Next to the museum, the 'Gipuzkoa in Miniature' outdoor exhibition will catch your eye, with over thirty faithful small-scale reproductions of some of the region's most iconic historical buildings.

The most modern building in the Miramon Technology Park is the Basque Culinary Centre (7), the second gastronomic university in Europe and a state-of-the-art centre where skilled professionals are trained, research is performed on the culinary arts and culinary courses are taught in several languages. what to do the art of making the most of your time

In San Sebastian, the cooking expresses what we're perhaps unable to express with words. Every pintxo (tapa) and every dish contains the language through which we want to convey unique emotions that you won't be able to forget. There's a reason why San Sebastian has been chosen this year as one of the 10 best gastronomic experiences in the world.

the best pintxos in each district

The “pintxo” (Basque “tapa”) was invented in San Sebastian in the 1930s., and originally it was a slice of bread with food on top held in place by a cocktail stick or “pintxo”, and hence the name.

There are simple versions such as potato tortilla, or Donostia’s ingenious “Gilda” creation, a spicy skewer of pepper, anchovy and olives which emerged by way of a tribute to Rita Hayworth. And then there are much more sophisticated pintxos, examples of miniature haute cuisine.

 Thursday.

In San Sebastian, "going out for pintxos" is a social act, and a way of gaining an insight into our culture.

It is recommended to try one or two pintxos in each bar to appreciate the work of different establishments, and accompany them with a zurito (a small glass of beer), a txakoli (a young white wine, slightly acidic and very typical of the Basque Country), or a traditional Basque cider. A simple and authentic way to savour the local cuisine.

Each district has its own identity, so make your choice!

to make your mouth water

Basque gastronomy is internationally renowned, and most especially the gastronomy of Donostia, thanks to the local chefs who modernised traditional Basque cookery and elevated it to the status of world cutting-edge cuisine.

The main feature of our gastronomy is the use of top-quality seasonal produce. There is a wide variety of cuisine, using a range of ingredients from the Cantabrian Sea (fish and seafood), and also from the plantations and pastures of the hinterland (greens and vegetables, cereals, meat etc.).

If you want to test-drive it, here we offer you a selection of the best restaurants. Which is your favourite?

19 Michelin stars

fancy treating yourself?

San Sebastian and its surroundings boast 19 Michelin Stars within a radius of 25 kilometres, including three restaurants with the highest award: Arzak, Akelarre, and Martín Berasategui, each with 3 Stars. In Donostia we have turned the kitchen into a think tank, and a creativity workshop that has been acknowledged all over the world. We have turned gastronomy into an art, an engineering discipline, a hallmark. But enough talk. Let's eat.

markets and gourmet shops

A large part of our success in food is due to the seasonal products that small, local farmers and ranchers bring to the city year round. They've been doing it exactly the same for decades. The traditional markets of San Martin (in the city centre) and La Bretxa (in the old town), are the best places to see the local products.

also for gourmets

The gourmet shops of San Sebastian are part of the city's culinary history. Their traditional sweets and savoury delicacies have been a staple of San Sebastian's culinary tradition for years, preserving the flavours that generations of families have enjoyed daily.

cider houses

from the apple to a self-service barrel

Cider has been produced here for centuries, from fermented apple juice using traditional techniques. From January until the end of April, the new cider is taken directly from the barrels on the call of "Txotx!"

Some cider houses are open all year round as restaurants, usually located at the farmhouses surrounded by apple orchards where the cider is made.

sagardoetxea cider museum

The Cider Museum, located in Astigarraga and a short distance from San Sebastian, pays homage to the apple and its juice. The exhibition space is split into three areas: an enclosed centre which summarises the history of the apple and cider using display panels and photographs. An apple orchard that allows you to study the different cultivation systems and the large variety of apples that grow in our region. And a space devoted to cider tastings.

Hondalea

Excavated in the empty lighthouse building on the Island of Santa Clara, Hondalea ("marine abyss" in Basque) by Cristina Iglesias is an overwhelming sculptural landscape that draws you in with that irresistible force that the untamed sea has when you look down on it from the vantage point of a cliff. Access to the sculpture is by boat from the port. This journey to the island by boat and looking at the rocks and waves from the paths leading to the lighthouse is also part of seeing the installation.

San Sebastian boasts a full and varied selection of museums: history, science and technology, oceanography and other sources of knowledge are disseminated through exhibition rooms, saltwater tanks and modern audiovisual facilities. To satisfy people who want to know more about how things work. People who want to learn about the world and themselves.

San Telmo museum

Located at the heart of the Old Town, the museum has reopened its doors after major renovations. With the 16th century Dominican convent renovated and extended with a contemporary building, this space has now become the Museum of Basque Society and Citizenship and offers a new perspective of our society. It's a must to learn about the long and intense history of the city.

Aquarium

The San Sebastian Aquarium is one of the most modern in Europe. The building, the work of the architect Juan Carlos Guerra, stands on a rock and has just undergone extensive renovations to give it more of an oceanarium that is crossed by a 360° acrylic tunnel, where the visitors feel like they are a part of the marine life as they watch sharks and rays pass over them. Over 200 marine species live in the numerous tanks that the museum has, including a touch tank aquarium where you can touch living specimens.

Two bull sharks, TXURI and CONCHITA, are the stars of the oceanarium and one of the main reasons why the Aquarium is the city's most popular attraction.

Launching of the San Juan whaling ship

In 2013, construction began on a replica of the San Juan, a Basque whaling vessel that sunk in Newfoundland in 1565. Its launch in 2025 completed its onshore construction phase and gave rise to a new phase at sea. Currently, the recovery of the Ozentziyo, the last traditional wooden fishing boat in the Port of San Sebastian, is worth mentioning.

There are paths that start at San Sebastian and take you to places that are so unlike one another that it doesn't seem possible that they're so close to each other. Behind every valley we cross there's a change in scenery and architecture, there's a different Basque language and a microclimate of its own. Here are some tips so you don't get lost in the surrounding areas. Or so that you do.

near San Sebastian

Basque Coast Geopark

The Basque Coast UNESCO global geopark is a small territory tucked between the Cantabrian sea and the mountains made up of the coastal towns of Deba, Mutriku and Zumaia. Its 13 kilometres of cliffs make a spectacular formation of layered rock (flysch) that shows more than 60 million years of the history of our land. You can walk around the cliffs and inland valleys, climb down to hidden coves, or admire the awe-inspiring coast from the sea on a boat trip.

Oarsoaldea sea and mountain

The region includes the towns of Pasaia, Lezo, Erreterria and Oiartzun.

San Pedro can be found on the bay of Pasaia, in its singular seagoing surroundings, home to the Albaola Basque maritime factory. You can cross the bay in the motorboat ferry as far as Pasai Donibane, a picturesque fishing village which is also famous for its cuisine.

Lezo and Erreterria have preserved their heritage and their historic town centres. Delving inland will take you to Oiartzun, under the watchful eye of the Aiako Harria Natural Park. It is worth taking a walk through the meadows and among the homesteads as far as the Roman mines of Arditurri.

Arditurri Mines (Oiartzun)

The Arditurri mines burrow deep inside the impressive granite block of Aiako Harria and the mining dates back to the time of the Roman Empire. The Large Mine can be visited and makes a great family excursion. You can get to the mines along the Arditurri greenway (for pedestrians and cyclists), just a short ride from Oiartzun, and enjoy the beautiful green landscape, its homesteads and museums.

behind the green heart inland route

Gipuzkoa's heart isn't red, it's green and winding: deep valleys, curved roads, villages built next to the rivers that cross the region in an inevitably ornate style.

Every week, Tolosa and Ordizia hold their busy traditional markets selling local produce. Heading back up the River Oria, you'll come to Beasain, where you can visit the Igartza medieval ruins, and Ataun, home to the Barandiarán Museum on Basque mythology. Nearby, there's Idiazabal, famous for its cheese with its own Protected Designation of Origin, and Segura, one of the most beautiful villages in the area, with narrow cobbled streets found nowhere else in Gipuzkoa, just like the Aizpea iron mines in Zerain. After passing through Mutiloa, you'll arrive in Ormaiztegi, where you can visit the museum devoted to the Carlist General Zumalakarregi.

mount Txindoki is the basque version of the Matterhorn

Goierri is overlooked by the always magical Aralar Mountains which are dominated by the Txindoki Peak, a symbol of the Basque mountains and landscape; our very own Matterhorn. To the south of the territory, there is another mountain range, Aizkorri. Zegama is one of its entrances, and it is here where the famous mountain marathon starts and ends.

Urola Garaia hermitages and ironworks

The upper basin of the River Urola is also known as the Iron Valley. The inexhaustible kinetic force of the river led to the emergence of its old ironworks and the subsequent thriving metallurgical industry. As you travel through this province you can observe the relationship between humankind and the earth and how iron transformed society in the Basque Country.

La Antigua

In Zumarraga you will find an architectural gem: The Antigua Hermitage, considered the Cathedral of Hermitages. Inside, an incredible timber frame supports the roof in such a way that it appears to be floating.

Mirandaola

And in Legazpi, the stunning spectacle of the Mirandaola Ironworks starts the journey through the Iron Valley: the Iron Museum, the Workers' Route and Chillida Lantokia, where the sculptor produced his most famous iron pieces.
